EARN YOUR MASTER OF LAWS DEGREE at THURGOOD MARSHALL SCHOOL OF LAW

At Thurgood Marshall School of Law (TMSL), we take a holistic approach to providing them a quality and empowering legal education. When possible, we have attempted to engage in community service by providing the kinds of lawyers with the appropriate skills to make a difference in our society. As Justice Marshall's mentor Charles Hamilton Houston said, "Lawyers should be social engineers." One avenue for positive social engineering that we provide is our first of its kind L.L.M. program in immigration and naturalization. As most of us know, there can be nothing more rewarding than helping immigrants, wary and fearful of the future, to establish a solid foundation in their lives by providing them the security of knowing they belong somewhere and that they may stay or remain. This is just one example of the type of justice that our graduates have been able to accomplish.

The mission of our L.L.M. degree program is to further the law school's commitment to excellence and justice by providing specialized academic and practical legal training to graduates; to equip them with an array of skills required to effectively practice, identify and solve complex problems of all kinds; and participate in constructive policy making in the field of immigration and naturalization law. Our L.L.M. degree is a natural complement to TMSL's Juris Doctor (J.D.) program, which is heralded for its institutional reputation for expertise in the field, including the continued success of its Institute for International and Immigration Law launched in the fall of 2012. By offering an advanced degree in immigration and naturalization law, TMSL maximizes its reputation such that the law school impacts the evolution of the law and policy that shape immigration and naturalization law and its practice. I am proud to say that the efforts of our graduates help to bend the arc of immigration policy and law towards justice. Texas attorneys will be afforded the opportunity to enroll in courses and programs that will assist them to prepare for, take, and pass the required test to become board certified immigration attorneys. With access to courses offered online, local, national and eventually international law graduates will be afforded the opportunity to complete our L.L.M. degree program, as well.

Enroll in our L.L.M. degree program at Thurgood Marshall School of Law. There is no better place to jumpstart or advance your career in the field of immigration and naturalization law.

MEET OUR LL.M. PROGRAM DIRECTOR

Fernando Colon-Navarro

Professor of Law and Director of LL.M. & Immigration Development

The LL.M. program in immigration and naturalization law at TMSL is a longtime in the making, but truly bittersweet for me and a small core of TMSL faculty and alumni, who were involved in the development of a certificate program in immigration law twelve years ago as the initial steps to stimulate interest. In 2015, we awarded 23 certificates in immigration law—the largest number of students at TMSL to be certified in this area. With the implementation of our LL.M. program, I am pretty sure there will be other law schools to trail us in developing LL.M. programs in immigration law. Yet, through our LL.M. program, we have created not just an academic program, but a practical program so our students can enhance their career profile. I am constantly receiving phone calls and emails from attorneys interested in our LL.M. program. Additionally, we have a list of foreign attorneys in Brazil who are interested in pursuing our LL.M. immigration program online and that list is growing with each passing day. With an initial small pool of students in the inaugural year, we anticipate great success with our LL.M. program in immigration and naturalization law this year.

FAST FACTS ABOUT OUR LL.M. AND THURGOOD MARSHALL SCHOOL OF LAW

Why should you pursue an LL.M. in Immigration and Naturalization Law at TMSL?

TO GET IN ON THE HEAT.

Let's face it: Immigration reform is simply HOT. It is one of the most disputed public policy issues facing our country. A heated national debate over immigration reform has spanned for multiple years, with no end in sight. Immigration and naturalization law and policy responds to a number of complex, competing demands and interests that touch on contested conceptions of national identity, class and socioeconomic status, and other related issues.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT

Immigration and naturalization law has proven to be a field of increasing importance, as practiced by a significant percentage of our TMSL graduates. As significant economic, social and other disparities continue to exist, and in many cases, increase among the states and around this nation, so will the need for lawyers with in-depth knowledge of immigration and naturalization law.

AFFORDABLE TUITION

*22,341.84 tuition and fees (in-state students only) for intensive 24 credit hour program.

OUR NATIONAL RECOGNITION FOR DIVERSITY

Historically, Texas Southern University Thurgood Marshall School of Law was created to be anything but diverse. Voted "Best law School of Diversity" in the nation by the National Jurist in November 2014 and "Most Diverse Law School" by PreLaw Magazine in 2015, now we tower over other law schools in mirroring our nation's mix for racial diversity. We enroll classes that are as diverse as you will find anywhere in the country.

OUR FACULTY

Our LL.M. students will experience courses taught by leading immigration practitioners, judges and professors who are dedicated to the pursuit of ensuring that each student has the opportunity to make meaningful progress in acquiring and employing the knowledge, skills, and values for successful lawyering outcomes. We have a faculty-student ratio that provides real opportunities for meaningful and individualized learning conversations.

OUR ACADEMIC COMMUNITY

Our LL.M. program builds on the success of our procedural, substantive and practical aspects of our Institute for International and Immigration Law certificate program. We are proud of our sound curriculum which has considered both doctrinal learning and the practical aspects of lawyering through our value-added immigration externship, immigration law workshops, and our comprehensive CLE series ranging from immigration basics to the impact of immigration on law on labor & employment, family law, criminal law, taxation and international business.

LL.M. ADMISSION INFORMATION

The LL.M. in Immigration and Naturalization Law is a 24-credit degree program that can be completed in one academic year as a full-time student or in two academic years as a part-time student. Minimum semester course load, six (6) hours. Maximum semester course load, twelve (12) hours.

The LL.M. Program provides an intensive academic program focused on current and emerging practice and policy issues in immigration and naturalization law. Distance learning is available through online coursework. The program is currently accepting enrollment for in-state and domestic students. International students are welcome to contact our Office for Admissions for additional information about enrollment procedures.

ADMISSIONS QUALIFICATIONS

U.S. Educated Attorneys

Applicants who received a law degree in the United States must have earned a juris doctorate (J.D.) degree from an ABA accredited law school. Applicants must demonstrate the ability to be successful in a graduate program, as evidenced by their law school academic performance.

Attorneys with Non-U.S. Law Degree

Any applicant who has earned a law degree from a country other than the U.S., must have earned a law degree from an accredited university or be eligible to practice law in their jurisdiction. Applicant must demonstrate the ability to be successful in a graduate program as evidenced by their law school academic performance. Furthermore, foreign applicants must be proficient in English as determined by a test of English proficiency.

Admissions Criteria

Application information is evaluated in its entirety. The review will include, but is not limited to: the applicant's prior academic record, including the applicant's law school academic record; letters of recommendation (two are required); personal statement; employment and professional course of performance; and evidence of any other qualities that may serve to predict success in graduate legal education.

Fitness and Character – Eligibility to Take a Bar Examination

All applicants who intend to practice law should be aware that admission to the bar in all states involves character, fitness, and other qualifications. Applicants are encouraged to determine what those requirements are in the state(s) in which they intend to practice by consulting the website of the National Conference of Bar Examiners at www.ncbex.org.

Some states authorize eligibility to take their bar examination, based on successful completion of a qualifying LL.M. degree. Texas is one of those states, but the requirements, including the courses specified by Texas that an LL.M. program must include and satisfy to serve as a stand-alone basis of eligibility to take the Texas Bar Exam are NOT included in this LL.M. immigration and naturalization degree program.

LL.M. APPLICATION PROCEDURE

HOW TO APPLY

All applicants must submit all required documents through the Law School Admission Council Credential Assembly Service at www.lsac.org.

- The TMSL $70 application fee must be paid to LSAC.
