

Brendetta Anthony Scott

Brendetta is a highly experienced attorney, court-appointed receiver, independent hearing examiner, and court-appointed mediator. She practices in the areas of personal injury, family law, evictions, foreclosures, collections, civil litigation, appellate litigation, and bankruptcy.

Ms. Scott, who has over 20 years of experience practicing law, has represented banks, credit unions, consumers, companies, debtors, creditors, and an official equity committee. She has also represented landlords and tenants in numerous contested matters.

As an adjunct professor at Thurgood Marshall School of Law, she imparts her legal wisdom, where she taught Professional Responsibility and currently teaches Appellate Litigation.

Ms. Scott's wide-ranging representation equips her with insightful and creative solutions, making her an adept communicator, negotiator, and litigator. Committed to securing the best possible outcomes, she passionately advocates for her clients.

