

Symone Redwine

Adjunct Professor, Law Practice 2

Professor Symone Redwine is a formidable attorney who has recovered millions of dollars on behalf of her clients across America. Prior to returning home to Texas, Professor Redwine served as a fashion attorney at McCarter & English in New York City, protecting the intellectual property rights of major fashion houses such as Christian Louboutin and Louis Vuitton. Now, as founder of the Redwine Law Firm, she recovers corporate reparations from dangerous corporations and insurance companies that have injured or killed her clients.

Professor Redwine is honored to join TMSL as an adjunct professor teaching Law Practice 2. In this ground-breaking course, which is the only one of its kind in the U.S., Professor Redwine teaches students how to open and run a six-figure revenue-generating law firm immediately upon graduation with actual document templates. No more being forced to accept below-market pay or hostile work-environments because you've graduated, but lack monetizable legal skills. Relying on the challenges she overcame to grow her solo practice with virtually no experience, Professor Redwine teaches students how to avoid pitfalls and build a successful solo practice with minimal capital and virtually no courtroom experience. With templates and cutting edge legal software, students learn to price and offer various services including but not limited to: formation of LLCs, obtaining expunctions and nondisclosures and negotiating maximum car wreck settlements without ever filing suit.

When she's not bankrupting multimillion dollar corporations, you can find her providing legal analysis on television programs such as TMZ, The Isiah Factor or BuzzFeed News or providing witty legal commentary on her YouTube channel, "Girl, Is That Legal?" As a legal analyst, Professor Redwine is often called upon to give legal and social commentary on issues ranging from celebrity legal drama, criminal, consumer and relationship matters. Her accolades include being named one of Texas' rising star attorneys, National Trial Lawyers Top 40 lawyers under 40 and University of Pittsburgh College of Business Administration's Outstanding Alumnus for 2022. She's also licensed in Texas, New York and New Jersey.
