CAREER SERVICES

The Career Services Office (CSO) prepares students for employment by introducing them to various traditional and non-traditional legal career options. The CSO provides extensive guidance in interviewing skills, resume building, cover letters, and networking tools. It presents employment opportunities through numerous resources that include on-campus interview programs; off-campus recruitment events and job fairs; and access to legal job sources that regularly announce available positions.

JOBS/CAREER CHOICES

Houston, as a city, is the largest legal market in Texas. The current law firm scene is dynamic offering some of the broadest variety in the types of legal work, with local, regional, and international firms all playing significant roles. As the largest seaport in the United States, an energy hub, a transportation center, and home for several major offices of financial institutions and insurance companies, Houston has the most diversified economy in Texas.

The following areas that are consistently active include: bankruptcy; compliance; employment; litigation; real estate; mergers and acquisitions; divestitures; public finance; biotech; IP prosecution, securities, oil and gas; appellate; ERISA; public service; probate; tax; and family law.

WHO WE ARE

The strength of Texas Southern University Thurgood Marshall School of Law lies in its ability to attract a diverse student body and faculty. Moreover, Thurgood Marshall School of Law is proud that it has produced numerous attorneys and judges of all ethnicities—thereby, significantly impacting the diversity of our nation’s legal representatives. This strength has enabled the law school to rank among the top five producers of African American law graduates each year. The highly competent faculty includes many teachers who are well suited to the law school’s mission. The strengths are as follows:

- A diverse student body, faculty, and staff.
- A local, regional, and national leader in the aggregation of minority law graduates.
- The largest producer of African-American lawyers to the Texas Bar.
- One of five approved law programs at a historically black college/university.
- One of the largest pools of African-American law professors at any law school.
- A large variety of funding sources.
- Second largest application pool for historically black law schools.
- Several institutes for specialized learning.
- A highly-credentialed administrative staff including six non-faculty JDs.

- The creation of several faculty support programs—annual sabbaticals, summer releases, research assistants, teaching assistants, and travel allowances.
- Association with a parent university with a large group of scholars in various disciplines.
- The provision of a community resource in the Environmental Justice area.

LOCATION

TMSL knows it's not just academia that promotes intellectual growth; social experiences matter too. The campus is centrally located in Houston, the fourth most populous city in the nation and a world-class city second to none. Come revel in a rich melting pot of diversity and experience a vibrant wealth of opportunity!
