Professor Fernando Colon-Navarro accepted an invitation to join the Globalization Committee for the Southeastern Association of Law Schools (SEALS). This committee facilitates exchanges of faculty members and students between SEALS-member schools and foreign law schools and introduces U.S. academic programs to foreign law schools. In addition, this month, Professor Colon spoke to students in the pre-law program at the University of Texas at San Antonio on immigration law and the history of TMSL and led a mock class on property law.

Associate Dean Cassandra L. Hill was appointed to serve as the Chair of the Conferences and Programming Committee for the American Bar Association Section of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar. The appointment is for an initial two-year term. A full list of the committee members may be accessed here: https://www.americanbar.org/groups/legal_education/committees/conferences_committee.html. The Conferences and Programming Committee leads the Section's conceptualization, planning, organization and implementation of workshops and conferences.

Professor Lydia Johnson accepted an appointment as Co-Chair for the Mindfulness in Law Society and as a Board Member of the AALS Mindfulness Affinity Group. Recognizing the trend in legal education, Professor Johnson incorporates mindfulness practices and philosophies into her trial simulation course. Through this instruction, students acquire the tools needed to handle stress and focus on the matter that is before them. Students who were at first skeptical about the practice, now readily use the mindfulness strategies learned in trial simulation. Professor Johnson also shared her expertise in mindfulness (including breathing techniques) with the new students in the Criminal Law Clinic as part of the Fall 2017 Law Clinic Boot Camp.

Associate Dean Stephanie Ledesma served as the Program Director of the National Institute for Trial Advocacy (NITA) Deposition Program for Public Service Attorneys hosted by Southern University Law Center in May 2017. Public service attorneys are those who work at Legal Aid and for other programs that provide direct representation to low-income and middle-income families who need but cannot afford legal services. More information is available at the following link: http://blog.nita.org/2017/06/southern-university-law-center-nita-public-service-program/?utm_source= Bulk&utm_medium=Email&utm_content=Article3&utm_campaign=2017SpringGivingVoice. Also Dean Ledesma was appointed as the Vice-Chair of the State Bar of Texas standing committee on Child Abuse and Neglect. Her appointment began on June 30, 2017, and conclude in July 2018.

Professor Ana Otero served as Co-Director of the Council on Legal Education Opportunity’s (CLEO) Regional “Attitude is Essential Program.” This program is an intensive pre-law workshop designed to introduce and prepare college graduates who have been accepted into an ABA-accredited law school for the rigors ahead. Professor Otero and Samer Korkor, an attorney at the U.S. Department of Justice in Washington, D.C., created the program curriculum and worked with the program facilitators for the six national regions. Notably, the facilitator for the Southeast Region was Christopher Ogolla, a TMSL alumnus who is now a professor at Savannah Law School. Additionally, Professor Otero taught the two-day workshop at CLEO’s Summer Institute at Mitchell Hamline in Minneapolis and the University of Texas in Austin.

Spotlight on Professor SpearIt’s New Book:

Professor SpearIt’s new book, American Prisons: A Critical Primer on Culture and Conversion to Islam, published with First Edition Design Publishing was just released. American Prisons: A Critical Primer on Culture and Conversion to Islam represents over a decade of investigating, researching and writing on prison culture. The overarching message of this anthology is that problems in prison are not isolated from society, and unlike the Las Vegas slogan, what happens in prison doesn’t stay in prison. Prisons are not neatly cornered off from society, but rather, are partners in toxic relationships with the communities to which ex-prisoners return. Against these sinister cultural developments, the book juxtaposes the quest for God and religious conversion. More specifically, conversion to Islam in prison over many generations has made prisons an important factor for the growth of Islam in America. The book includes policy prescriptions based on the notion that prison reform is not just about justice for those on lockdown, but also communities outside as well. You can find additional information about Professor SpearIt’s book at the following link: https://www.amazon.com/American-Prisons-Critical-Culture-Conversion-ebook/dp/B074MJBP65/ref=sr_1_12?ie=UTF8&qid=1502391302&sr=8-12&keywords=spearit.
Professor L. Darnell Weeden’s extensive research has been cited recently by several legal scholars. Professor Weeden’s article entitled, The Black Eye of Hurricane Katrina’s Post Jim Crow Syndrome is a Basic Human Dignity Challenge for America, 37 Cap. U. L. Rev. 93, 106 (2008), was cited by Robert Rubinson, the Dean Gilbert A. Holmes Professor of Clinical Theory and Practice and Director of Clinical Education at the University of Baltimore School of Law, in his article, Grids and Gatekeepers: The Socioeconomics of Mediation, 17 Cardozo J. of Conflict Resolution 873, 892 (2016). While discussing the realities of participating in mediation for low-income participants, Professor Rubinson stated many low-income people must rely exclusively on very public transportation to get to mediation or to escape a hurricane. Professor Rubinson then cited to Professor Weeden’s article to illustrate the life-and-death implications of transportation issues for low-income people during Hurricane Katrina, when New Orleans residents with resources had flown or driven away from the City while the lower-income population left in the city rode on unreliable buses, which only went to the chaotic and dangerous Super Dome.

Lastly, Professor Weeden’s article entitled, The Supremacy Clause Preemption Rationale Reasonably Restrains an Individual State Pursuing its Own Separate but Unequal Immigration Policy, 14 Scholar 679 (2012) was recently cited by Professor Chad G. Marzen and Professor William Woodyard II, both of Florida State University College of Business, in their article, Catholic Social Teaching, the Right to Immigrate, and the Right to Regulate Borders: A Proposed Solution for Comprehensive Immigration Reform Based Upon Catholic Social Principles, 53 San Diego Law Review 781, 791 (2016). Professors Marzen and Woodyard identify Professor Weeden as one of numerous academic commentators who have written law review articles concerning the legality and effects of state and local enforcement of immigration.

Several of our professors participated in the 2017 Southeastern Association of Law Schools (SEALS) Conference, which offers legal educators panels and discussion groups on cutting-edge legal topics, classroom pedagogy and research by junior scholars. Professor Craig Jackson shared his research and expertise as part of a discussion group on the law of national security and foreign affairs in the Trump Administration. Professor Fernando Colon-Navarro served as a panel discussant for a discussion group on comparative method of legal analysis and moderated a new scholars workshop during which junior faculty presented their works-in-progress on business and commercial law issues. Associate Dean Stephanie Ledesma presented her research on teaching cultural competence in law school and moderated a workshop on teaching and designing an effective law school course or seminar. Professor Deanna Pollard-Sacks moderated a panel on the Dakota Access Pipeline and the lessons learned and how to address tribal and sovereign interests in such disputes. Professor Sally Green served as a moderator for a new scholars workshop that addressed the external reviewer’s role in the tenure process and strategies to succeed in the critical part of the process. Professor Ericka Kelsaw moderated a panel on regulating immoral and offensive trademarks and the tensions between morality and speech inherent in intellectual property. Professor Lydia Johnson moderated the plenary session on mindfulness in law schools, which is a newly added track to the SEALS conference.

The 11th Annual Criminal Defense Clinic Boot Camp kicked off on August 8, 2017, under the direction of Professor Lydia D. Johnson. The rigorous boot camp is designed to equip the clinic participants with the knowledge and skills needed to navigate through the criminal court system in Harris County. At the end of the boot camp, participants are required to pass a comprehensive exam in order to obtain their 3L Temporary Bar Card.

Professor Johnson introduced the participants to Mindfulness, a practice that reduces stress and promotes mental focus, and extended the practice throughout the week by incorporating a 10 minute meditative session at the beginning of each day. During the course of the week, various presentations were conducted including State Bar Grievances and Attorney Disciplinary Process, Language of the Court, How to Conduct a Bond Hearing, Interviewing Techniques, Active Listening Exercises, Motion to Suppress, DWI Basics, Subpoenas and Petition for Non-Disclosure. Presenters included TMSL Alums Jed Silverman, class of 1999; Wilvin Carter, class of 2004; Kali Morgan, class of 2004; and Alan Macias, class of 2013.

Seven years ago, Hannah was also crowned Miss Houston Teen 2010 and was the first and only African American to win that title. Now she is the first African American to be a Houston double crown winner.

What is one of your most memorable experiences at TMSL?
My most memorable experience occurred after my contracts final exam 1L year. My classmates and I were all celebrating the completion of our first semester of law school, when I became aware of a huge mistake that would cost me 50% of my grade on the exam. I was extremely devastated and heartbroken. I vividly remember my section-mates and I sitting in my car when one of them began to pray. I learned so much from that entire experience, such as God can and will get you through any struggle; my classmates are like family; and mistakes will be made along the way in law school, some more detrimental than others, but it is not the end of your career. We cannot give up because of one or two mistakes. We have to recover and overcome becoming stronger than before.

How do you plan to use your law degree after graduation? After I have passed the Texas and California bar exams, I plan to relocate to California to practice sports and entertainment law. I plan to incorporate my background in journalism and pageantry into my legal career. My goal is to negotiate and draft contracts for top talents in the field. I want to help talents achieve their goals and be represented to their fullest potential.
TMSL/TSU Women receive Houston Area Honors

The Top 30 Influential Women of Houston are celebrating four of TMSL/TSU’s own at their 2017 Awards Gala. These women were honored on September 29, 2017, for their perseverance and leadership in their respective fields.

Texas State Representative Senfronia Thompson, TMSL alumna, has represented the 141st District since 1972. She has been fighting for approximately 45 years to pass legislation for the benefit of Texas residents. This year State Representative Senfronia Thompson is named as an icon honoree.

Antoinette “Toni” Jackson, TMSL class of 1991, practices in the area of real estate including commercial development and affordable housing. Additionally she services as counsel to various public housing authorities providing expertise in U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and other issues. This year Attorney Jackson is honored as one of the top 30 influential women of Houston.

Texas State Representative Shawn Thierry, TMSL class of 1996, represents District 146 since 2016 after winning the election by 97%. She sits on the committees for county affairs, juvenile justice and family issues. Additionally, she maintains her private practice in the Houston area focusing on commercial litigation and personal injury. State Representative Thierry is honored this year as one of the top 30 influential women of Houston.

Mary Young, a veteran of the Houston Police Department, became the first female police chief of Texas Southern University earlier this year. Her accolades include community initiative programs for seniors, and the youth and bridge building between the police and the community. TSU Police Chief, Mary Young, is honored this year as one of the top 30 influential women of Houston.

IN MEMORIAM

Opal Laverne Mitchell Lee, a loving wife, mother of six children, and grandmother has continued her journey beyond this earthy realm on September 2, 2017. She always strived to live a life of advocacy to those around her, especially her children and always acted to benefit others.

Majority of her life she was a civil rights activist, championing the causes of those in need; an accomplished writer, and the author of Enduring and Overcoming, a book on display in the National Museum of African American History. She enriched the lives of her family and friends who will remember her fondly as a caring, distinguished and loving individual.

Opal Laverne Mitchell Lee is the namesake and inspiration for the Earl Carl Institute’s Opal Mitchell Lee Property Preservation Project, a project to preserve wealth and reduce property loss in communities of color. We extend to Opal Laverne Mitchell Lee’s family our profound pride in being afforded this opportunity to convey our gratitude for a woman who left a profound impact on our community, and who immensely enriched TSU, TMSL and the ECI family.

Dr. Lamore Joseph Carter, the father of TMSL alum E. Leon Carter, Class of 1986, and the uncle of TMSL alumna Rhonda Arnold, passed away on August 30, 2017. Dr. Lamore Joseph Carter, dedicated his life to service and academia. He was a Dean of facilities, and a professor of psychology and education at Texas Southern University. Dr. Carter served as the President of Wiley College during which time the college achieved its highest enrollment in two decades. He was also the Vice President of Grambling University and the Coordinator of the Louisiana Consent Decree Program for the desegregation of higher education in Louisiana. The TMSL family sends our condolences to the family and expresses our gratitude for his service.
