Former TSU Regent is new TMSL Acting Dean

Gary Bledsoe has been selected to serve as acting Dean of Thurgood Marshall School of Law. Attorney Bledsoe, a past Texas Southern University Regent, began in his new role on November 1. Attorney Bledsoe specializes in public interest law, employment and civil rights law. He is president of the Texas NAACP and has held that position since being elected in 1991. He has a longstanding relationship with the NAACP as a member of its National Board since 2003 and is chair of the National Criminal Justice Committee of the NAACP. He earned his bachelor's and juris doctorate degrees from the University of Texas at Austin. Professor Marcia Johnson serves as Special Assistant to the Dean and assists acting Dean Bledsoe in the transition. Professor Johnson has been serving TMSL as co-founder and director of the new Urban Research and Resource Center, an interdisciplinary collaboration with TSU's School of Public Affairs, and was a former interim dean of the law school. Cassandra Hill, Associate Dean and Professor of Law, assists both Dean Bledsoe and Professor Johnson in the administration of the law school.

JAMES M. DOUGLAS, Distinguished Professor of Law accepts TMSL honor from United States Congressman

TMSL Distinguished Professor Dr. James M. Douglas attended a reception in honor of Thurgood Marshall School of Law on September 12, 2017, in Washington, D.C. during the Congressional Hispanic Caucus Institute 2017 Leadership Conference. The reception was hosted by U.S. Congressman Vicente Gonzalez of the 15th Congressional District of Texas in commemoration of National Hispanic Heritage Month. U.S. Congressman Gonzalez presented an honorary plaque to commend the law school for its efforts in educating and preparing Hispanic students for the legal profession. Honorary hosts included TMSL Alum (class of 1973), U.S. Congressman Al Green; TMSL Alum (class of 1979), U.S. Congressman Hank Johnson of Georgia; U.S. Congresswoman Sheila Jackson Lee; U.S. Congressman Gene Green and U.S. Congressman Henry Cuellar.

“As we celebrated the achievements and contributions of the Hispanic community during Hispanic Heritage Month, I wanted to honor Texas Southern University by applauding Thurgood Marshall School of Law amongst a host of the law school’s alumni and friends, for its unwavering commitment to aspiring and practicing Hispanic lawyers in Texas and across the nation.” - U.S. Congressman Vicente Gonzalez Professor Thomas Kleven presented a paper entitled "Will Automation Liberate the Working Class or Further its Immiseration" at the ClassCrits Conference at Tulane Law School on November 10, 2017. The thesis of the paper is (i) that automation is gradually destroying more jobs than it creates and will likely eliminate within 100 years the need for human labor to produce many if not most of the goods of social life, (ii) that automation has the potential of freeing humanity from the necessity to work in order to support oneself and thereby enabling people to live more enjoyable lives, (iii) that this will not happen if the capitalist class continues to control the automation process because they will appropriate for themselves the lion's share of what automation produces and leave for the masses only enough on which to subsist or at best to prevent the masses from revolting, and (iv) that achieving the benefits of automation for all requires that we institute some form of democratic socialism so as to ensure that the goods produced through automation are fairly distributed throughout society.

Professor L. Darnell Weeden's article entitled, Employing Race-Neutral Affirmative Action to Create Educational Diversity While Attacking Socio-Economic Status Discrimination, 19 ST. John's J. Legal Commentary 297, 332-33 (2005) was quoted by Kylie Rahl in her comment entitled Racing To Neutrality: How Race-Neutral Admissions Programs Threaten The Future Use Of Race-Based Affirmative Action In Higher Education in the 49 Tex. Tech L. Rev. Online Edition 109, 130 (2017). While contending the percentage plans have the greatest impact at the undergraduate level, Rahl quoted Professor Weeden's article for his assertion that "there is no evidence that a modified version of the percent concept will not be effective at the graduate or professional level."

Professor SpearIt, on October 1, 2017, published "#TakeAKnee: Sports, Politics & Civil Religion" in The Islamic Monthly, <https://www.theislamicmonthly.com/takeaknee-sports-politics-civil-religion/>. Assistant Director of Admissions, Kenyon Moore to serve on prestigious LSAC committee

Kenyon Moore, TMSL class of 2009, has served as the Assistant Director of Admissions for the past seven years. In October, Moore accepted the invitation to serve on the National Recruitment Work Group for LSAC as the South Western Association of Pre-Law Advisors (SWAPLA) representative. Moore will work with pre-law advisors for a two year consecutive term to develop and promote successful recruiting events for law school candidates, event sponsors and law schools. The group, consisting of advisors and one law school representative from each APLA region, meet once each year at the end of each recruitment season.

In accordance with his service, he also presented at the San Francisco LSAC law school forum and conducted a workshop on “Forum 101/Application Process” on Thursday, November 2, 2017, in San Francisco. During the presentation potential law students learned about the correction application approach and process for law school admission.

Where is your hometown?

Why law school? What do you want to do when you finish law school?

Being dismissed scholastically from the University of Texas at Austin after my freshmen year made me realize I wasn't prepared for college. After returning home, I began doing backbreaking manual labor at a meat distribution company which employed mostly middle-aged men with little to no education beyond high school. We worked twelve hour shifts, six days a week, for little to no pay or benefits. My future was headed nowhere fast, and knowing my dreams of greatness would never be reached, served as the catalyst I needed to spark my inner flame. I felt extremely fortunate to return to school after serving my eight-month suspension. I was determined to succeed unlike ever before because I understood now that education is the only true way for a Black man to break out of the cycle that plagues people of color.

The past failures I overcame in undergrad show the true nature of the man I have become. My unique life experiences provide me with invaluable insight I hope to use as a future advocate in the legal field. As a young leader looking to champion the causes of the community, attending law school was the most logical destination for me to maximize my potential and learn how to positively affect the lives of others. Gaining a first-class legal education will provide me the tools necessary to be an outstanding community advocate. My goal is to be an inspiration for other young men raised in similar environments to understand their potential and strive to become the best they can be.

Drawing upon her career and contacts in banking and inspired by class discussion on wealth and property accumulation in Professor Tekle’s 1L property class, Ms. Hagger in 2015, founded and also served as president of Lawyers Acquiring Wealth Society (LAWS) at TMSL, a student organization aimed at increasing financial literacy among the TMSL student body. Under Ms. Hagger's passionate and infectious leadership, LAWS hosted three law school events during the 2017 Houston Money Week in April. These events included:

1. “Young, Gifted, and Broke” which brought in speakers regarding debt, budgeting, and investment;
2. “Extra Credit” which included a credit score review with Sherrie Young from the Credit Coalition. Ms. Young presented tips on raising credit scores and disputing credit errors. It also included a mobile banking bus provided by BB&T bank. The bus allowed students to print out their credit reports, review their taxes, and ask bankers questions regarding finances; and
3. A round of table talks held in the TMSL lobby with financial institutions such as Wells Fargo, Compass, BB&T, People’s Trust, IBC, Primeway FCU, the Federal Reserve, and the Small Business Association. The last event also included giveaway bags for the entire law student body and money games with prizes.

A fourth April 2017 Houston Money Week event was held off campus at Holman Street Baptist Church where LAWS participated in Moolas Gra$, an initiative aimed at empowering children and young adults with financial literacy.

IN MEMORIAM

It is with great sadness that we announce the passing of Judge Alvin James "Ben" Morales, class of 1979. Judge Morales departed this life on June 19, 2017. He leaves behind a legacy of justice and impartiality in the Webb County Court at Law #1. Judge Morales served on the bench for twenty years and was an outstanding member of the judiciary according to many. Morales, along with former County Court at Law #2 Judge Jesus "Chuy" Garza, launched the county's first-ever juvenile drug court program in December 2013. The TMSL family extends our condolences to the Morales family.

The TMSL family extends its condolences to the family of Anthony Muharib, class of 1995, in the passing of his father. Mr. Muharib arose on August 19, 1925, and transitioned into eternal rest on November 19, 2017. Mr. Muharib is remembered as a wonderful father and blessed man. His children are thankful for his 92 years of life and proclaim he taught them well.

Laurie Davis, the sister of TMSL Alumna, Sherri Washington, class of 2004, departed from this world on November 19, 2017. She leaves behind a loving husband and four magnificent children. Services were held on November 27, 2017, in Conyers, Georgia. Beloved by her family, she will truly be missed.

The life of Samuel Cooks Jr. was celebrated on November 20, 2017, in Colorado Springs, Colorado. Mr. Cooks is the father of the Honorable Kim Cooks, class of 2002. He was the epitome of a gentleman and a devoted husband to his wife, Ok Nan Cooks of 49 years. A Retired Master Sergeant of the U.S. Air Force, Master Sargeant Cooks, was laid to rest at Ft. Logan National Cemetery, Denver, Colorado, with full Military Honors by The United States Air Force Honor Guard. Dedicated to his country and his family, he lived a full life of 88 years on this earth protecting and serving others.

Cherry Lee Anderson, the mother of TMSL Alum and Professor Ricky Anderson, class of 1992, transitioned to her heavenly resting place. Her greatest joy was helping others and sharing the gospel. One of her most cherished moments was to step foot in the Holy Land and be baptized in the Jordan River. Cherry was the first person of color hired by Woolworth Five and Dime in the 1950's in Benton Harbor, Michigan. Upon moving to Texas she continued her service to The Lord through Mt. Horeb Missionary Baptist Church, serving as President of the Senior Missionary Circle. We will forever cherish her words spoken in her final days; "I have lived a great life and I loved every minute of it."

Recycle reminder

Go Green! Let's remember to recycle our used bottles! The recycle bins are located in two areas of the law school and emptied every morning!

Let's do our part!
