In Harris County, Texas, nineteen (19) African American female democratic judicial candidates are making political history, by being the largest number of African American women running for judicial seats on the ballot in Harris County history. We are honored to announce that out of the nineteen (19), eight (8) of these women are graduates of Texas Southern University, Thurgood Marshall School of Law: Germaine Tanner, Angela Graves-Harrington, LaShawn A. Williams, Linda M. Dunson, Toria J. Finch, Erica Hughes, Ronnisha Bowman, and Sharon Burney. We were able to interview a few of these ladies who were excited to share why they are running and how Thurgood Marshall School of Law prepared them for this moment.

Angela Graves-Harrington stated that she is “running to restore compassion, integrity, and respect to the bench,” and that the education she received at TMSL prepared her for the challenges of effectively practicing law on the State and Federal level, she also states that TMSL instilled in her a sense of duty to protect the sanctity of the legal system and the confidence to do so.

Linda M. Dunson stated that she is “running a ground game based on her belief that everyone deserves a fair shake, should have an economy working for them, have a right to health care, ensure there is equality, affordable education for all and her concern about immigrant families.” Dunson also stated that TMSL has prepared her well for the position she seeks because the diversity of the student body exposed her to different cultural norms and taught her how to relate to and appreciate the differences between ethnic groups.

During the interview of Ronnisha Bowman, she stated that her campaign is “one that seeks to restore trustworthiness, fairness and accountability in our judicial system,” and that TMSL taught to her real courtroom experience which has prepared me to argue a case before any judge and instilled in her to always be overly prepared.

Join us in congratulating these awesome ladies of justice!!

Professor Katherine Vukadin accepted an offer from the University of Richmond Law Review to publish her article, On Opioids and ERISA: The Urgent Case for a Federal Ban on Discretionary Clauses. The article explores the high rate of benefit denials for mental health and substance abuse claims in employer-sponsored plans. Professor Vukadin concludes that the discretionary clause found in most plans is at least in part to blame; she advocates for a federal ban on such clauses, akin to the ban found in many states. The article also received offers from the South Carolina Law Review, the Brooklyn Law Review, and others.

Professor Vukadin and Adjunct Professor D’Andra Shu accepted an invitation to present their topic, Catching On: How Post-Critique Assessments Deepen Understanding & Improve Legal Writing, at the Legal Writing Institute’s Rocky Mountain Regional Legal Writing Conference in Las Vegas, Nevada this spring. They plan to present and further develop techniques for helping students digest and implement professors’ suggestions for improving their legal writing.

Associate Dean Cassandra Hill’s article in the Howard Law Journal, The Elephant in the Law School Assessment Room: The Role of Student Responsibility and Motivating Our Students to Learn, 56 Howard L.J. 447 (2013), was cited in three different articles published this summer 2018, as part of the Journal on Legal Education’s special issue on law school assessment. Judith Welch Wegner, the Burton Craige Professor Emerita and Dean Emerita of the University of North Carolina School of Law and co-author of Educating Lawyers, highlighted Associate Dean Hill’s discussion on the need for students to take responsibility for their learning in partnership with faculty instructors in Law School Assessment in the Context of Accreditation: Critical Questions, What We Know and Don’t Know, and What We Should Do Next, 67 J. Legal Educ. 412, 422 n.38 (2018). Associate Dean Hill’s article, The Elephant in the Law School Assessment Room, was also cited by Susan Hanley Duncan, Dean and Professor of Law at the University of Mississippi School of Law, in her article, They’re Back! The New Accreditation Standards Coming to a Law School near You—A 2018 Update, Guide to Compliance, and Dean’s Role in Implementing, 67 J. Legal Educ. 463, 479 n.76 (2018). In They’re Back, Dean Duncan references Associate Dean Hill’s recommendation to use surveys to solicit information about students’ responsibility for their learning and their level of preparation. Lastly, Associate Dean Hill’s The Elephant in the Law School Assessment Room article was cited Sophie Sparrow, Professor of Law at the University of New Hampshire School of Law, in her article, Teaching and Assessing Soft Skills, 67 J. Legal Educ. 553, 560 n.33 (2018), for its discussion of students’ part in the assessment process.

Associate Dean Hill’s article in the Nevada Law Journal, Peer Editing: A Comprehensive Pedagogical Approach to Maximize Assessment Opportunities, Integrate Collaborative Learning, and Achieve Desired Outcomes, 11 Nev. L.J. 667 (2011), was also cited by Susan Hanley Duncan, Dean and Professor of Law at the University of Mississippi School of Law, in her article, They’re Back! The New Accreditation Standards Coming to a Law School near You—A 2018 Update, Guide to Compliance, and Dean’s Role in Implementing. 67 J. Legal Educ. 463, 479 n.76 (2018). Dean Duncan explained that formative assessments range in complexity and effort and listed some common examples of assessment methods, notably peer assessment, which is detailed in Associate Dean’s Peer Editing article.

Professor L. Darnell Weeden accepted an offer to publish his article entitled “Equal Voting Rights Require Removing Race and Partisan Discrimination from Elections and Legislative Gerrymandering” from the Louisiana Law Review which is published by Louisiana State University.

Adjunct Instructor Positions—Hiring Now

Texas Southern University Thurgood Marshall School of Law invites applications for Adjunct Instructor for the upcoming Spring 2019 semester, which officially begins on January 14, 2019. While consideration will be given to all applications as curricular needs arise, the Law School has an immediate need for applicants who are interested in teaching the courses listed below. In your cover letter, please indicate which class or classes you are interested in teaching and provide a summary of your related background or experience.

Spring 2019
Texas Property Law (3 credits)
Appellate Litigation (2 credits)
Trial Simulation* (2 credits)
Adjunct instructors are hired in a part-time capacity on a semester-by-semester basis, contingent upon the needs of the Law School. The successful candidate will possess the following required qualifications:

• J.D. degree from an ABA-accredited law school;
• Be a member in good standing in your state of bar licensure;
• Strong academic and professional qualifications;
• Practice experience that is sufficiently extensive and relevant to the requested teaching assignment;
• Demonstrated ability to achieve excellence in teaching and in guiding and mentoring students; and
• Commitment to the goals of the University and the Law School.

*In addition, for Trial Simulation, the ideal candidate will have extensive litigation and trial work experience and significant experience in teaching effective communication and advocacy skills necessary for success in law practice. Adjunct Instructors who teach Trial Simulation will be a part of the Law School’s experiential learning program. There may be other teaching opportunities available in the experiential learning program in the near future (including, but not limited to, Evidence for Litigators, Deposition and Other Discovery Techniques and Mediation).

Applicants will be considered until the positions are filled. If you are interested in teaching as an Adjunct Instructor, please email your cover letter and resume to Cassandra Hill, Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, at cassandra.hill@tmslaw.tsu.edu. Also, please complete the online application at https://jobs.tsu.edu/postings/2957 (which requires submission of a resume, cover letter, and unofficial transcript).

It is the policy of Texas Southern University to provide a work environment that is free from discrimination for all persons regardless of race, color, religion, sex, age, national origin, disability, sexual orientation, or protected veteran status in its programs, activities, admissions or employment policies. This policy of equal opportunity is strictly observed in all University employment-related activities such as advertising, recruiting, interviewing, testing, employment training, compensation, promotion, termination, and employment benefits. This policy expressly prohibits harassment and discrimination in employment based on race, color, religion, gender, gender identity, genetic history, national origin, disability, age, citizenship status, or protected veteran status. This policy shall be adhered to in accordance with the provisions of all applicable federal, state and local laws, including, but not limited to, Title VII of the Civil Rights Act.

ECI & Partners Launch Make My School Safe Toolkits

Texas Appleseed partnered with Disability Rights Texas and the Earl Carl Institute to launch off its School Safety Toolkit. The toolkit is designed to equip students, parents, caretakers, educators and advocates with resources so they can address school safety and school police issues and advocate for procedural and policy changes at their campus and school district. You can check out their toolkit by visiting https://www.makemyschoolsafe.org

This School Safety Toolkit will provide you with information on:

- which methods and approaches actually work to increase school safety and create positive school climates;
- the rights students have when they are accused of misbehavior in their schools;
- the impact of safety and policing policies on students with disabilities;
- how to organize your community in order to initiate policy changes with respect to how police officers are allowed to interact with students in schools and the type of training that should be required for school police officers;
- other tools that can be used to combat the “school-to-prison pipeline”
- and so much more!

*The “school-to-prison pipeline is a term that describes the policies and practices—the use of suspensions, expulsions, school police, and courts—that push students out of the classroom and increase the likelihood that they will experience academic difficulties, drop out of school, and come into contact with the justice system.

This guide is not meant to provide legal advice, either general or specific. For legal advice, you should consult a lawyer. Legal aid or the Texas State Bar may be able to help you find a lawyer. If the impacted student has a disability, Disability Rights Texas may be able to help.
Our Story – The History of the Thurgood Marshall School of Law tells the “story behind the story” of the blood, sweat and tears-drenched road to the founding of the Thurgood Marshall School of Law (TMSL), as well as the warrior battles against “powers & principalities” to protect it, the eternal charge to improve it and the ancestral responsibility to pass it on.

Part One: The Long Journey Home (1776-1947) available now at urrc.tsu.edu recounts centuries of horrors and resistance to those horrors that helped pave the way for the improbable yet profound founding of the Thurgood Marshall School of Law. The legal roadblocks to Black freedom, citizenship and education are examined, as are seminal legal cases that built and then helped tear down walls of exclusion thereby clearing a pathway for educational access. The victory to open the doors of the TMSL is a tale that can’t be fully appreciated without first journeying through the many decades preceding 1947, when Blacks were beaten, tortured and/or killed for daring to learn to read.

Bravely, Blacks fought through the many barriers to build, one soul-soaked brick at a time, a movement of resistance to tyranny and terrorism, to open new doors of opportunity, using the law representing our constitutional values to fight the laws that conspired to hold Blacks back. Not because of lack of insidious effort, but rather because of the dogged persistence of Blacks with a passion for the law and justice, who refused to bend and bow; who with backs straight and chests out and hearts affixed to justice, and eyes forever on the prize, marched on—through Reconstruction, Jim Crow segregation, and fighting on foreign battlefields for a democracy Blacks could not enjoy at home. Part One: The Long Journey Home (1776-1947) tells this story in powerful and glorious detail.

In total, Our Story – The History of the Thurgood Marshall School of Law includes four parts, offering online publications, video interviews and a coffee-table book highlighting important aspects covered in the four-part series. It is a tale symbolic of the journey of Black people in this country.
Part One: “The Long Journey Home” (1776 – 1947) recounts the centuries of horror and the resistance to those horrors that paved the way for the new school. [available Oct 2018]

Part Two: “In the Beginning: The Building Years” (1947 – 1960) reveals the herculean challenges and triumphs involved in opening the doors of TSU’s law school. [available Nov 2018]

Part Four: “Our Story – The Collection” will serve as a coffee table book summarizing and highlighting the entire journey covered throughout the Our Story – Thurgood Marshall School of Law project; a journey that brought us to this day while exploring the legacy that we are leaving to generations that follow. [available Feb 2019]

Moreover, with its bar-setting diversity, the story of the TMSL reflects the growth of this nation and world. For there is no corner of this globe that has not been made better by the contributions of the women and men who make up the trans-generational family of the Thurgood Marshall School of Law. Their story, the Thurgood Marshall School of Law’s story, is everyone’s story. It’s Our Story!
Name: Ivonne Batarse
Classification: 3L
Hometown: Houston, Texas
Undergrad Degree: Political Science
Externship Placement: Office of the Attorney General-Child Support Division

Why did you choose the OAG?
I chose the OAG office because I am very interested in family law and this is the perfect place to get started. From learning how to conduct family law trial, to defining what “best interest of the child really means”, I am learning so much from the team that I am assigned to. Child support court is about so much more than just child support. What is the relationship between the parents and the children, what is in the child’s best interest, medical insurance, visitation, who makes decisions about the child…there is so much that must be considered and thoroughly thought through to make sure that the child gets all the love and support they need.
TMSL has prepared me well for this next phase of my preparation. From a personal perspective, this placement has allowed me to become more outgoing and more comfortable with trying and doing new things.

Name: Sean Bostic
Classification: 3L
Hometown: Hamden, Connecticut
Undergrad Degree: Political Science/Criminal Justice
Externship Placement: NASA, Houston, Texas

What areas of practice have you focused on while working at NASA this summer?
Litigation; Transactional Agreements; Government Contracts; Space Act Agreements; and more.
In an environment that is dynamic, fast-paced and spirited, I chose NASA because I believe NASA to be the gold standard in law offices. If given the chance, I was confident that NASA would introduce me to areas and nuances of the practice of law that I did not know even existed. I am honored to represent TMSL and I am honored to be a part of the NASA team.
Name: Teresa Dostal
Classification: 3L
Hometown: Alice, Texas
Undergrad Degree: Business Administration, concentration Finance
Externship Placement: The Galaviz Law Firm, PLLC

Why did you want to work with the Galaviz Law Firm?
I am passionate about immigration law. Being a child of an immigrant, I feel a great kinship and responsibility for those who need help in navigating the labyrinth of immigration law in this country. Attorney Galaviz is a great attorney, a great mentor and someone who shares my compassion for service-leadership.
This externship helped me focus on legal research and writing, it allowed me opportunities exercise and apply critical thinking skills and engage in issues that I feel passionate about. Working at something you love to do is a dream come true. This summer, I lived my dream.

Name: Benjamin Adam Neece
Classification: 3L
Hometown: Brownsville, Texas
Externship Placement: The Law Office of Michael Gonzalez

I am proud to have had this opportunity to serve as an extern at the Law Office of Michael Gonzalez. As an intensive care nurse, I have used my hands and my knowledge to literally save people’s lives, I now want to shift my focus and use my knowledge of the law to save lives, communities, hopes and dreams.
Attorney Michael Gonzalez has taken me under his wing and taught me how to put into action what I have learned in law school. While I have always known, I now embrace and understand on a different level how important my professional brand is and will be, especially given that my father is an attorney here in Brownsville and has worked tirelessly to make a name for himself and a place in the community for our family.
To wrap it up, I used this externship opportunity to practice skills learned at TMSL and I have the benefit of seeing the positive affect on clients and their loved ones. I look forward to continuing to serve.

TMSL Students Named HBCU Competitiveness Scholars

Elizabeth A. Opara (3L) and Veisha Godfrey-Phelps (2L), students at Thurgood Marshall School of Law, were named the 2018 HBCU Competitiveness Scholars by The White House Initiative on Historically Black Colleges and Universities (WHIHBCU)—a student recognition program that honors outstanding students in the areas of academics, leadership, civic and entrepreneurial engagement. Opara and Godfrey-Phelps exceptional achievements were recognized at the 2018 National HBCU Week Conference on September 16-19, 2018 in Washington, D.C.

As part of this recognition, both Opara and Godfrey-Phelps will serve as ambassadors of Texas Southern University and the Houston community for the 2018-19 academic year. In this role, they will participate in outreach and engagement opportunities, information and resources to share with fellow students on the University campus, as well as initiatives to engage with other WHIHBCU Scholars and WHIHBCU staff to improve and encourage more leadership amongst other students.

Dr. Kendall Harris, Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs at Texas Southern, state that “Entrepreneurship is important and I’m so glad that we have two highly qualified law students who will be participatory and represent TSU, locally and globally, in this White House Initiative.”

“We are so proud of our two students that have been selected and are confident they will provide substantial contributions to advance the concept of entrepreneurship in the HBCU arena,” says Gary L. Bledsoe, Esq., Acting Dean of Thurgood Marshall School of Law. Dean Bledsoe further stated that these ladies “Have shown great discipline, scholarship and concern for others during their tenure at the Law School.”

Please join the TMSL Family in congratulating Ms. Opara and Ms. Godfrey-Phelps.

Degree: B.S. in Criminal Justice

Jobs/Internships: Currently a SGT in the U.S. Army Reserves (9 Year Veteran). Prior to attending TMSL I interned at the United States House of Representatives in the Office of Congressman Bennie Thompson through the Congressional Black Caucus Foundation's Emerging Leader program. Following the internship, I returned to Houston and served as a Program Coordinator at Genesys Works, a local non-profit organization that serves disadvantaged high school students. As a 1L, during the spring semester I served as an intern at The Gibson Law Firm. This past summer I spent 12 weeks in Washington D.C. interning at The National Governors Association for the Office of General Counsel, the Office of Government Relations and the Office of Management Consulting and Training.

Why Law School? I chose to attend law school because I wanted a challenge. I felt it would drastically improve my critical thinking and analytical writing.

Memorable Experience: Attending the 3L hooding was one of my most memorable experiences. Never would I have imagined being in law school. There, in front of me, was the representation of hard work and dedication. I imagined myself walking up and being hooded. I saw my friend’s family members in the crowd cheering. I saw my colleagues filled with joy. After seeing the 3Ls being hooded, the feeling I had seeing myself in their place will remain unmatched until I accomplish the same.

9 months after graduation: I plan to pass the bar. Following the bar passage it is my hope that I am still serving in the Army Reserves, but as an Commissioned Officer, instead of my current status as a Non-Commissioned Officer. I plan to have a secure job in the legal field that involves constant traveling and sets the foundation for a longevous career.

TMSL Alumna, CC Drayton, Class of 1999, was named 2018 Super Woman in Business by the Memphis Business Journal (the “Journal”). The Journal described the Super Woman recipients as “Relentless change agents who see the good and use their focused drive to make a difference.”

When asked what her super power is? CC responded that it is “Fortitude” which by definition is courage in pain or adversity. As a student at TMSL and throughout her legal career, Attorney Drayton has shown great fortitude by excelling at the top in all of her endeavors. Attorney Drayton graduated with honors at Thurgood Marshall School of Law. From there she went back to her hometown of Memphis, TN where she was an associate for the largest law firm in Tennessee, she then served as the senior assistant city attorney for the City of Memphis for 14 years before joining Baker Donelson as a shareholder concentrating her practice in transactional and regulatory matters involving government entities. So, it is quite evident that Fortitude made CC Drayton a Super Woman!!

Please join the TMSL Family in congratulating CC on this prestigious honor!!

Recycle reminder

Go Green! Let’s remember to recycle our used bottles! The recycle bins are located in two areas of the law school and emptied every morning!
Let’s do our part!
