In a candid conversation, Dr. James Douglas discussed African American legacies with Dr. Rich Watkins. Dr. Douglas engaged with Dr. Rich Watkins on his podcast "Critical Concerns with Dr. Rich Watkins" over the summer. The episode focused on discussing the legacy of HBCU's, civil rights in Texas, and the current state of education for students of color and people in the south.

If you're interested in listening to this podcast, please tune in on Youtube.

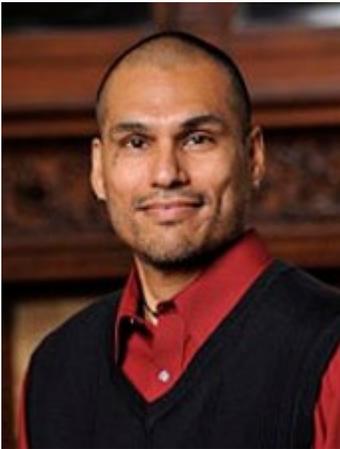

Professor Craig Jackson discusses the Juneteenth Holiday

Thurgood Marshall Law Expert and Professor Craig Jackson discussed Juneteenth becoming a national holiday on NewsNOW on Fox over the summer break. This was a great way to wrap up the holiday weekend or to start the week fresh with insight and perspective on this pivotal moment in history. Professor Jackson provided insight on this historical moment. The last federal holiday was created in 1983 when former President Ronald Reagan established Martin Luther King Jr. Day. President Biden's legislation on Thursday 17, 2021 made Juneteenth a federal, national holiday which spurred conversation of progress by some and yet a call for action by many others. You can now re-watch this episode on www.newsnowfox.com to watch Professor Jackson explore this pivotal moment in American history.

Professor SpearIt quoted in The New York Times

Thurgood Marshall's own, SpearIt, was included in an article published in The New York Times's article on Muslim prisoners. SpearIt has been a professor at TMSL for nearly a decade, and has published numerous legal articles and books. Most recently, Professor SpearIt wrote American Prisons: A Critical Primer on Culture and Conversation to Islam, which can be purchased on Amazon. Because of his knowledge on the topic of Islamic prisoners, Professor SpearIt, was asked to contribute to a New York Times's article about this topic. The article is titled "I Don't Think You're Going to Be Eating Tonight... Muslims Describe Ramadan in U.S. Prisons," by Sanya Mansoor.

The article discusses the challenges that Muslims face when trying to practice their faith while incarcerated, such as practicing Ramadan and not eating for several days as sacrifice. SpearIt says in the article that Muslim prisoners received a stunning victory when two federal court cases in Alaska and Michigan held that prisons denied prisoners adequate Ramadan diet that complied with federal health guidelines for caloric standards. The article referenced SpearIt as a professor at Thurgood Marshall School of Law and as an expert on litigation involving Muslim prisoners. We continue to support Professor SpearIt in his efforts to raise awareness about the brutal conditions that prisoners face, as he continues his research and expertise in this area of law.

Professor Dannye Holley gives his take on the current landscape of policing

Professor Dannye Holley has published an article entitled "Leon and the State Supreme Courts, 1984-2019" that will appear in Volume 57 of The Criminal Law Bulletin (a peer reviewed Journal) at page 453-483.

ABSTRACT:

The United States is in the midst of probably its most intense review of the role of policing. This conversation is overseen, in part, by the Supreme Court of the United States. Importantly, states supreme courts also play an important role. These courts' policy evaluations are the cornerstone of determining the appropriate resolution of the interest of citizens versus that of the government implicated by how we define and regulate policing. In June of 2020, the New York Times published an article in which state supreme court justices acknowledged their role in regulating policing, particularly with regard to sensitivity to its racial injustice implications, and their somewhat problematic performance. This Article is a study that helps to inform that conversation by analyzing the responses of the states supreme courts in the last thirty-five years to the U.S. Supreme Court's 1984 decision in United States v. Leon, which recognized the Good Faith Exception to the Exclusionary Rule. Specifically, this national study of constitutional federalism analyzes the outcomes and reasoning found in scores of state supreme courts' decisions applying Leon and, in doing so, suggests ways to appropriately limit the authority of law enforcement agents in ways that might more effectively provide protection to all of the people throughout the country.

STUDENT NEWS - Student Spotlight

Andrea Villarreal

Andrea Leigh Villareal, is a rising 3L who we're shining this month's student spotlight on! Andrea has been a shining star at TMSL both academically and in her extracurricular activities. Andrea is involved in the TMSL Ambassadors' program, Hispanic Law Student Association (HLSA), serves as a Barbri Representative, and a member in Women of Law. Andrea is also the President of the TMSL Ambassadors and an ABA Representative. Andrea had multiple internships, in summer 2020 she worked for the Law in Technology Diversity Collaborative, where she gained experience as in-house counsel with HPE in San Jose, California and split her summer with Sidley Austin. She was invited back summer 2021 to work as a summer associate for Sidley Austin's Palo Alto, CA office. Andrea plans to pursue a practice in transactional law focusing on mergers & acquisitions, global finance, and ECVC.

Although it may appear as though Andrea has it all figured out, it wasn't an easy ride. Andrea balances law school course work, extracurricular activities, and internships with being a mother to her son. "My son is very busy with Tae Kwon Do and Tumbling, so I have to make it a priority to get to his practices and tournaments to ensure I support him, while making time to study and do my best in school," says Andrea. She shares that her best practice for balancing all of these tasks is through using calendars. "I am a big proponent of calendars and tend to schedule my events, commitments, and time for myself. It helps me to keep things in perspective and on top of my busy schedule," said Andrea. However, calendars aren't her only tip for success. Andrea mentions her son keeps her very motivated, "I know that I am capable of having an amazing career where I can provide for the needs of my son. I want to show my son that hard work always pays off and to never give up on your true dreams."

Her tips for success have worked for her this far as she prepares for her last year of law school, Andrea has set new goals. "I want to continue to build new connections and foster the connections I currently have. I plan to make the most of my last year of law school and celebrate more of the small victories that happen every day," said Andrea. We are sure that Andrea will have many more victories to share in the near future! Villareal has advice for all future law students "law school takes serious commitment, and it is not for the faint of heart or mind. Be ready to dedicate yourself to your studies and to push yourself harder than before. It will pay off tremendously when you secure your future career in the practice of law. ALWAYS do your best!"

Omar Vargas' unrelenting commitment to Bar scholarship

TMSL Alum, Omar Vargas has once again stepped up to support other TMSL alums by supporting them with bar prep resources. Omar annually provides TMSL students with over $3500 in bar scholarships to assist students with funding bar prep, funding housing and necessities while studying, and any other assistance that students may need during bar prep. This year Omar provided scholarship funds to three TMSL law students.

After students took the bar, this past July Omar took them out to eat to celebrate their accomplishment of sitting for the bar exam. Omar says, "I believe in helping the bar students because I once was a bar student. I remember being broke, intimidated, exhausted, and anxious. I recently treated the bar takers to a happy hour to tell them directly I am proud of them and love them. Am I my brother's keeper?"

Omar is committed to giving back to TMSL students and shows his efforts annually with this scholarship fund. Thank you, Omar, for supporting TMSL students, your efforts do not go unnoticed!

Karaoke is in the cards for you with TMSL Alumna Dae Fenwick's Kulture Karaoke

Thurgood Marshall alum, Dae Fenwick has a new product “KultureKaraoke” will be sold at all Target stores beginning this Fall. Kulture Karaoke is a fun card game for adults that helps people perform their favorite karaoke songs by simply pulling a card and picking a song. The game requires 3 groups, or if playing as individuals just 2 players and the willingness to pull a card, pick a song and perform. Dae started this after having a birthday party in 2020 where she invited friends and family to celebrate at a local Karaoke lounge in Atlanta. To make things more interesting, she decided to have everyone pull a card and select a song to sing based on the categories like “a song that remind you of middle school.” Her friends and family loved it and from there she started KultureKaraoke.

IN MEMORIAM

Lucinda Daniels Memorial Tribute

Daughter, Mother, Sister, Friend, Lucinda Renee Daniels gained her wings Friday, June 4, 2021, at the age of 47. It is with deep sadness to share that Lucinda was laid to rest on June 14, 2021, at 12pm at the TSU Sawyer Auditorium. Lucinda is a TMSL graduate from the class of 2000. She returned to the law school initially as the Director of Career Services but quickly transitioned careers to combining her love for academia with social justice by working at the Earl Carl Institute in 2009. Most recently, Lucinda was promoted to Deputy Director of ECI where she ran the Street Law Clinic. She also managed the Interdisciplinary Journal for Legal & Social Policy and provided oversight on student assignments and assessments. Her profound impact at ECI will not be forgotten as she served at TSU for over 16 years and in 2019 received the first ever TSU Shining Star Award for staff.

Lucinda had a phenomenal professional career but outside of work she was a mother to her son Jarvis. Lucinda was a Christian and maintained membership at The Church Without Walls. Lucinda was also an avid reader, traveler, and enjoyed journaling. Lucinda always enjoyed the company of her small family and circle of friends. Some of Lucinda's friends, family, and colleagues had only amazing things to say about her. "I am deeply saddened to hear about Lucinda's untimely passing. She brought sunshine everywhere she went - always a lovely smile on her face. My thoughts are with everyone in our TMSL community - her professors, co-workers, colleagues. She was respected and loved by all who knew her. We will miss her. May her spirit of grace continue to bless this earth," says Ana Otero.

Larry Weeden says "I believed that there is a time for everything under the sun, but we were simply not ready to lose our shining star Lucinda Daniels. The TSU community has lost a very good servant of the people who was especially committed to those considered the least of these in our community. Thank you for serving us well, Lucinda."

"We will remember Lucinda as a kind heart who would help anyone. She was brilliant and she will be terribly missed."
Sarah R. Guidry.

Lupe S. Salinas, "may our great friend and proud Tiger Law Grad rest in peace. Blessings to her family."

Our respect goes out to Lucinda's family and friends, and we ask that the TMSL community continues to pay respects to Lucinda R. Daniels and her family. "Fore we know that if the earthly tent we live in is destroyed, we have a building from God, an enteral house in heaven not built by human hands," 2 Corinthians 5:1.
